BISECT URGE FRENCH, BUT BRITISH SAY KEEP INTACT

Silesian Triangle Worst Of Council's Many Big Problems

TO SPLIT OR NOT?

First Day's Session Is Marked By Diverse Opinions

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, August 8.—Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Curzon, Sir Robert Horne and Baron Hayashi arrived on Sunday evening at the Gare du Nord, where they were welcomed by M. Briand and M. Berthelot (Secretary of the Foreign Office).

Mr. Lloyd George invited M. Briand to dine with him at the Hotel Crillon, where the British delegation is staying, and the two Prime Ministers afterwards had a long tete-a-tete, the importance of which is emphasised by the press, which says they were able to recognise that the differences between them was not so great as had been supposed. The Intransigeant understands that their exchange of views revealed a most amicable feeling on both sides.

From an early hour this morning Mr. Lloyd George discussed with the British experts the result of their labors and the divergence between the various proposals as to the apportionment of Upper Silesia.

Owing to the late arrival of the Italian Premier, who was greeted by M. Briand at the Gare de Lyon this morning, the meeting of the Supreme Council was fixed for 3 p.m.

SILESIA IS MAIN ITEM

The Petit Journal observes that the Allied Ministers have never been called upon to take decisions which concern more seriously the interests of the countries which they govern, and that of the eight or nine items on the agenda the problem of Upper Silesia is the essential point.

The Petit Parisien is of the opinion that, however wide the divergence of view between France and Great Britain as to the interpretation of the Upper Silesian plebiscite, there is no apparent need to despair of an agreement, but this can only be attained on one condition, that the conclusions of the experts are duly taken into account, and that both sides abandon the idea of considering the industrial area in that territory as indivisible.

This journal opposes the supposed impossibility of a division of the area. It contends that, having considered the indications afforded by the plebiscite, the technical experts have recognised the practicability of such a division, and that the more this grave question is discussed with a desire to facilitate an understanding, the more it appears that the wisest solution will be a sort of "judgment of Solomon," which would moreover assign to Poland the greater part of the industrial districts.

WANT HARVEY TO LEAD

The Gaulois thinks that the representatives of Italy and America will possibly take the initiative in effecting a settlement.

The Matin insists that, if the conference between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Briand is to yield fruit, it ought to bear not only on a local problem, however important, but on the whole system of policy in what Great Britain is interested.

The French press publishes a statement by the Polish Foreign Minister, in which he appeals for a prompt settlement in conformity with the Treaty and the Plebiscite, and affirms his attachment to France.

Certain British journals, notably the Daily Chronicle, do not attempt to disguise the difficulties of the situation. The Daily Mail does not doubt that, with good feeling and good will on both sides, a satisfactory agreement can be reached, and declares that there could be no greater misfortune than a weakening of the Entente. The same paper and also the Daily News consider that the presence of an American delegate at the Supreme Council is certain to exercise a happy influence.

The Daily Express says:

"The Supreme Council should put an end to the dangers of war which exist in Upper Silesia by

MARCH OF EVENTS

BY BRUCE HOPPER

Sir Galahad, the chaste knight, whose strength is as the strength of ten because his heart is pure, is about to leap from the "Siege Perilous" to save the distressed ladies, England, France and Italy, from the devastating clutch of the giant ogre called the United States.

At least such knightly action is the moral duty of Japan at the Pacific conference, according to the brave statements made to the Japanese people by General Horiuchi in the Yamato.

Laying aside selfish motives of safety chivalrous Japan will pit the lance of exposure against the young and virile giant, and protected by the snow white shield of high resolve will prove that only the brave deserve the merit of finding the beautiful grail of international gratitude. The reason for the contemplated heroism, as explained by the herald of Sir Galahad, is that Europe has been rendered inarticulate through fear of offending the world's great creditor, the United States.

IN pointing to the American expansion policy as the unpardonable sin for which all Europe hates the United States, General Horiuchi contents himself with vague references to the Far East as the field of that expansion. To make the charges specific he calls upon the government at Washington to return most of America to the Indians, as a preliminary proof of the sincerity of the United States in calling the conference.

Just what the Indians are to do with America he does not feel qualified to state. If the General ever passed a day on an American Indian reservation he must know that most of the Indians have a higher standard of living than the majority of Japanese subjects, that every Indian is given more land than he can till, more horses and cattle than he cares to feed, and has credits from the government agents during the winter which cause people living in the West to declare the Indians are dying through over indulgence on the part of the American government.

Although Japan is nearly bankrupt from over-taxation and the slump in trade, nationally poor in natural resources, dragged to a position of dizzy eminence by success in the war with Russia, and now torn with internal dissension between the bureaucrats and liberals, the call to the chivalry of Sir Galahad will not be unanswered, nor will his heart be rendered impure by deviation from the pretty quest.

According to General Horiuchi's enlightened judgment Britain is about to lose her many children because of their fatal attraction to the neighbor's boy, the United States, who also happens to be one of the progeny. Here is a wise conceit for Anglo-Saxon contentment to nibble.

TO see ourselves as others see us is often provocative of much that is good. But to realise the Japanese people are still nourished with the military chauvinism of a Bombastes Furioso awakens only a feeling of sadness. Dissemination of knowledge and introspection does seem to have developed in extenso in the island kingdom. The appetite surely grows by what it feeds upon, and the capacity of the Japanese public to swallow seems to increase with digestion.

Those privileged to listen to the discussions which preceded the drafting of the Versailles treaty remember the obliging willingness of the Japanese delegates to agree on all questions affecting Europe. They sat back with a pat hand, which was Shantung, and when that came up they urged racial equality throughout the world as a trading point to gain their ends. To demand 'this' in order to get 'that' is not a new diplomatic trick, but never was there a cleverer master of the technique than Japan.

It is the fear that such "trading" will not be in order at the conference which inspires the present smoke screen from Japan. The Pacific conference savors too much of an international bar of justice to be wildly pleasing in Tokio.

However, Sir Galahad has promised to attend; let him prove the temper of his steel.

Fleming Will Give Bail And Be Released Today Under U.S. Court Order

Six Months Prison Sentence For Contempt Of Court Suspended Pending Review Of Case By California Tribunal

By virtue of an order that was issued yesterday in the United States Court for China by Judge C. S. Lobingier, Mr. William S. Fleming who on July 23 was sentenced to serve a term of six months in the American prison here for contempt of court, is to be released from custody today on bail in the sum of Gold $2,000. The prison sentence is to be suspended pending a review of the contempt proceedings by the Ninth District Court of Appeals in California to which the case is being taken upon a writ of error.

It will be remembered that the penalty of six months imprisonment was imposed at the time that Attorney Fleming was on trial on a charge of criminal libel filed on complaint of Mr. Stirling Fessenden of the firm of Fessenden and Holcomb and after he had read in Court an affidavit in which he made charges against Judge Lobingier, and a whole group of court officials and others.

CHARGES DENIED

In this connection eight affidavits were filed yesterday with the Clerk of the Court denying allegations contained in the document that Attorney Fleming read. These affidavits were filed by Maj. C. P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney, Mr. F. J. Schuhl, United States Commissioner, Mr. N. E. Lurton, United States Marshal, Mr. H. D. Rodger, Assistant U. S. District Attorney and Attorneys Stirling Fessenden, Leonard Hartigan, J. R. Browne and H. W. Mei.

The order that enables Mr. Fleming to give bail and be released is incorporated in a ruling that Judge Lobingier handed down on a motion for reduction of sentence that Mr. Fleming presented after he had been committed to prison. The ruling deals at length with a contention that Mr. Fleming advanced that the Court in inflicting punishment for contempt had only limited powers. In overruling Mr. Fleming's motion for reduction of sentence the Court points out that one adjudged guilty of contempt is not entitled to bail as of right, but the Court expresses unwillingness to place any obstacle in the way of a review of the contempt proceedings by a hegher court and therefore the privilege to give bail is granted.

The two charges of criminal libel made against Attorney Fleming on complaints of Mr. Stirling Fessenden and Mr. Manuel Concepcion remain to be heard. A motion for a change of venue made by Mr. Fleming when brought to trial on the first of these charges is yet to be ruled upon by the Court before the trial can take place.

TEXT OF RULING

The full text of the ruling that was given yesterday by Judge Lobingier is as follows:

On Motion To Reduce Sentence And For Bail.
SYLLABUS

1. Contempt: Sentence. A motion to reduce a sentence for contempt, not alleged to be excessive except as it exceeds a consul's jurisdiction, must be overruled, especially where the contemnor suggests no intention to purge himself of the contempt.

2.——: Bail. While one who has been adjudged guilty of direct contempt is not entitled to bail as of right, it is allowed in this case in order to enable the proceedings to be reviewed in the appellate court.

H. D. Rodger, Esq. Special U. S. Attorney, for the Government W. S. Fleming, pro se.

Lobingier, J.:

Respondent has filed a motion for a reduction of the sentence" based principally upon the following provision:

"No fine imposed by a consul for a contempt committed in presence of the Court, or for failing to obey a summons from the same, shall exceed fifty dollars; nor shall the imprisonment exceed twenty-four hours for the same contempt." (1).

This statute is in derogation of the common law under which, as pointed out in the original order, imprisonment for contempt was "at the discretion of the judges." (2) and "all statutes in derogation of the common law are to be

YOURIN MUST SEE CHANG FOR PACT AS TO MONGOLIA

Peking Declines To Thrust Its Oar Into Puddle Of Mukden Tuchun

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Aug. 6.—As sensational reports have been in circulation regarding the relations of Mr. Yourin with the Waichiaopu during his recent visit to Peking, Reuter instituted inquiries in official quarters and was informed that when Mr. Yourin was passing Fengtien he met General Chang Tso-lin and wished to discuss with him matters relating to Mongolia, the Chinese Eastern Railway and a commercial agreement between China and the Russian Far Eastern Republic.

General Chang Tso-lin informed Mr. Yourin that he had no authority to discuss anything but Outer Mongolia, and it was arranged that Mr. Yourin should return to Mukden later on. In Peking the Waichiaopu declined to enter into any agreement relating to Outer Mongolia, on the ground that General Chang had been empowered to deal with that question.

In the event of an agreement being reached at Mukden, it will, therefore, be of the character of a military undertaking between Mr. Yourin, acting on behalf of the Red forces in Outer Mongolia, and the Commander-in-Chief of the Mongolian expedition.

Two Million Claims Already Passed On

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, August 8.—M. Loucheur, the Minister of Liberated Regions, in the course of a speech at the ceremony of bestowing on the Aisne communes the Croix de Guerre, said that during the year over two million decisions had been taken on the 2,800,000 claims which had been lodged with his Department.

SHANGHAI FLIERS RECEIVE GIFT OF AVRO AIRPLANE

Aeronautical Society Plans To Establish Aerodrome In Kiangwan District

It was announced yesterday that the gift of an Avro airplane which is now in Shanghai has been made to the Shanghai Aeronautical Society by Mr. C. J. White of the Central Garage and is to be placed in service, probably in October.

The airplane which has become the property of the Aeronautical Society was brought to Shanghai some months ago by the Central Garage Company as a commercial venture as the company planned to operate an agency and sell Avro planes here. Objections to the importation and general sale of airplanes were raised by the Chinese Government, however, and the plane that was shipped here was held by Customs officials.

Mr. Philip Crovat, Secretary of the Aeronautical Society, said yesterday that the question of obtaining possession of the plane from the Customs officials had been taken up with Sir Everard Fraser, British Consul-General, and it was not believed that the Society would encounter any difficulty in getting the machine. It is stated that the new plane will be used chiefly for the purpose of giving instruction. The Society has taken an option on a track of ground in the Kiangwan district where it is planned to establish an airdrome where the new plane will be stationed.

The lecture series that the Aeronautical Society plans to give will probably be started with the advent of cooler weather. The first of these lectures will be delivered by Capt. R. N. Swan and Dr. Herbert Chatley.

In the coming weeks a campaign to enlarge the membership of the Society is to be opened and in this connection it is announced that all those who desire to join may make application to Mr. Crovat at No. 10 Nanking Road.

ASKS JAPAN TO BE CALM BUT WATCH CONFERENCE

Premier Hara States The Position Japanese Ought To Take

SIBERIAN MIXUP

Rapid Change There Is Cause Of Delay In Evacuation

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Mr. Hara, the Premier, discussing the Washington Conference and the question of the Japanese evacuation of Siberia, has made a statement to the effect that, in so far as the object of the Conference is to ensure a lasting peace, an agreement as regards armament limitation and the finding of a satisfactory solution of Pacific problems, it commands the hearty support of Japan. The reply of America to Japan as regards the agenda gave an excellent opportunity for Japan to participate in a conference which intends to make a substantial contribution to world peace and the welfare of humanity. The Premier continued; "The nation is requested to maintain a calm and dignified attitude, watching the development of events with keen vigilance, but refraining from chauvinism."

As regards Siberia Mr. Hara declared: "Japan desires the evacuation of Siberia as soon as possible, but she is embarrassed by the rapid changes of the situation there. Japan has no territorial ambitions in Siberia. This point is fully understood by the other Powers."

Northcliffe Praises Harding's Bold Vision

Victoria (British Columbia), Aug. 8.—Lord Northcliffe has left for Honolulu. Prior to his departure, speaking at the Canadian Club on the subject of disarmament, he referred to British Columbia as the nearest window through which one could look upon the Pacific and the whole Eastern world. On that horizon was an outstanding point, namely, President Harding's proposal that the Pacific should give a lead to the rest of the world by becoming truly pacific through a limitation of armaments.

Lord Northcliffe believed that President Harding and Mr. Hughes (Secretary of State), whom he saw at Washington, had the clearest understanding of the momentous character of the conference at Washington, which might well prove the greatest and most pregnant gathering of its kind ever held.

Lord Northcliffe expressed the opinion that if the delegates to the Conference truly and consistently represented the desires of their respective nations, an agreement would be reached and an era of peace and prosperity would be opened in the Far East while the example and advantages therefrom would result in the extension of the movement throughout the world. He said he was sailing into the Pacific in the hope that in the next few months he would acquire a thorough and more direct study of some of its problems than was possible at home, a better understanding of their nature, and a knowledge of exactly where the points of danger lay. He emphasised that he felt that at no moment in modern history had mankind been called on more urgently than the present for an earnest endeavor to rid humanity of the burden of armaments, and he declared that failure would mean a catastrophe.

Ll. George Not Going? He Makes No Correction

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 8.—It is reported that in an interview with American journalists in Paris, Mr. Lloyd George said he would be unable to attend the Disarmament Conference at Washington on November 11.

The announcement has created surprise in London, where Government circles attribute the decision to the enormous accumulation of work requiring Mr. Lloyd George's personal attention in the Autumn. It is further suggested that anticipated developments of the Irish situation caused him to change his mind. A personage in close touch with the

Making Babies One Hundred Percent Efficient At Leeds

LEEDS, England, prides itself on its civic consciousness of the importance of infant welfare, and the annual "Baby Week" is its chief function. How Leeds cares for its babies can be seen in this photograph. The photo shows a nurse sunbathing two of the little inmates. This is an important part of the curative treatment to make children 100 percent efficient.

Oh For A Hyther Guage To Indicate Inward Woes!

By Elsie McCormick

Nothing as crude as temperature is the basis for the hyther system of measuring heat. As we understand it, the scientist stirs in the humidity, the height of the victim's collar, the disposition of his wife, and the contents of the ice-box, thereby arriving at a figure that expresses the exact amount of his psychic discomfort.

This new system will seem especially interesting to those who wish to brag a bit about the weather they have endured, but who find the local temperature figures too conservative to startle the family. How much more convincing it will be to say "I was 9,894 under the cellar yesterday" instead of "It was 98 degrees in the shade." Even such places as Minnesota, where summer is an amateur performer, can achieve a temperature of 98 degrees. But it is about as much like the 98 degrees of Shanghai as a kitchen range is like a blast furnace.

It seems to us, however, that the hyther idea could be developed much farther. Why not a hyther to register one's mental pleasure or discomfort? Like the heat hyther, it could range in degrees from 1 to 10, 1 indicating the highly pleasurable sensations of holding a young lady's hand in a motor car or looking at one's self in a mirror under a mercifully shaded light; to 10, which indicates boredom to the limit of human endurance, at which point the victim passes into unconsciousness.

BUTION—"HIGHER HYTHER?

If each person wore a hyther pinned to his lapel, think how many social errors would go uncommitted and how many long hours of wriggling boredom could be eliminated! As it is at present, a young lady searching wildly for subjects with which to interest a new escort may feel impelled to dwell upon baseball. How is she to know that her partner once broke his nose in the game, that a professional ball player eloped with his particular Penelope at home, that his father lost a good share of his money backing a bush-league team, and that he consequently loves baseball about as much as he did the lowly remedies for infant colic? Not from his fixedly smiling face can she guess it, nor does she learn the error of her ways until he quietly excuses himself and seeks out another maiden with a conversation full of such sparkles as "You tell 'em, ouija-board, you've got the right spirit!" and "You win the handsome filet lace bath-tub!"

If, however, he had had a hyther fastened to his lapel in place of a carnation, she could have observed the indicator rising dangerously toward the high mark of mental discomfort and therefore have changed the subject to when the Ritz is going to open, or don't you wish you had one of the ice cream sundaes they make in the States or some other seasonable topic. By mentioning other young ladies and meanwhile keeping her eye on the hyther, she can discover by observing any sudden drop in the level of boredom the names of those in whom he seems to be most interested. She would note a similar drop as soon as she began to talk about the young man himself.

Consider, too, the wonderful help that the hyther would be to a dinner hostess. If, by casting her eye about the table, she learned that her guests were within two degress of going to sleep, she could either tell the boy to open up a bottle of champagne chop-chop or else signal her husband to try out those stories which somebody had translated from the French and which, she had been afraid, wouldn't quite do.

WHY NOT RAGE GAUGE?

Though there are some who might object that the use of the hyther would tend to make polite society less polite, we are quite convinced that the invention would preserve our social hypocrisies intact and be extremely convenient besides. Consider, for instance, the young lady whose partner persists in stepping on her feet. To his, "Oh, excuse me; that was my fault," she could reply sweetly, "Oh, not at all!" meanwhile changing her position so as to give him a glimpse of the indicator on the northermost edge of her evening gown. One look would be sufficient to let him know where she stood, or rather toddled, in the matter, and by continuing to smile blandly she would preserve her reputation for having a sweet temper.

Think also of what a boon it would be to a backward suitor or to one whose sincerity was doubted. Instead of inviting the lady to place a hand on his thundering heart, he need only demonstrate by the hyther that his interest in her was absolute and complete.

Hythers would also be a great advantage to lecturers and solicitors for philanthropic causes for by careful observation of the front row they could forestall the first rise of the boredom indicator and choose a psychological time for taking up the collection.

In fact the only times we can think of when hythers wouldn't be an advantage would include occasions when one entertained rich but tiresome relations, or when a man was sitting out a dance with his wife. However, it would always be possible to mislay them temporarily, and such small drawbacks certainly shouldn't be allowed to stand in the way of such a great invention.

CANTON VOTERS ALMOST SOLID IN FAVOR OF DR. SUN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Aug. 5.—The results of the election in Kwangtung for district magistrates and membership of the Assembly, while not yet fully received in Canton, indicate that wherever the Kuomintang Party (Dr. Sun Yat-sen's) has competed, its candidates were mostly successful.

In many districts the inhabitants, except a few politicians, paid no attention to the election. In Canton proper not much enthusiasm was shown, as practically everything had been settled before the election day, the voting being but a formal matter which no one but the interested really bothered about.

Speech-making and the public appearance of candidates to canvass for votes were not at all evident in Canton, things being arranged in secret among those concerned.

'PERFIDIOUS CHIHLI' HAS ROUSED IRE OF MUKDEN

Chang Tso-lin Threatens To Send 4 Divisions To Oust Wu Pei-fu's Force in Wuhan Cities

SOUTH WINNING

Shasi Menaced And Wang's Troops Melt Away After Five Days Battling With Hunan

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, August 9 (4:40 p.m.)—The report that Warlord Chang Tso-lin and Warlord Tsao Kun are coming to a parting of their ways if a split already has not taken place is confirmed by the receipt of a telegram by Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan from Chang Tso-lin. The Mukden Warlord is urging Wang to remain at Hupeh and has promised to despatch four divisions of Fengtien troops to replace the "insincere and perfidious Chihlites."

The Hupeh troops have met with reverses and according to the wireless report of the Chinese navy, have retreated to Kinkow, 60 li from Wuchang. Sun Chuan-fang, Commander-in-Chief of the Hupeh troops and Wang Chan-yuan's right-hand man has been wounded in the leg.

Hsiao Yao-nan is mobilising his troops briskly at the frontier of the province and is preparing to resist the advance of the attacking forces.

The Civilians' Union of Hankow has received a telegram from Ex-President Li Yuan-hung telling them that, in cooperation with the members for the Hupeh gentry at Tientsin and Peking, measures are being taken for the consolidation of Hupeh province.

Tsao Kun Must Take Drastic Steps, He Says

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, August 9 (12, noon).—The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce has sent a wire to the two warlords, Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun as well as to General Wu Pei-fu urging them to bring about a cessation of the fighting in Central China.

The answer from Tsao Kun was the existing situation compels him to take drastic actions against the invaders. He says that he will exercise his full strength to keep the frontier clear of the invading army and that efforts to bring about a compromise with Chao Heng-ti, Tuchun of Hunan, have been unsuccessful.

The General Chamber of Commerce has loaned $30,000 to the local Defence Commissioner to buy his protection.

Shasi Also Menaced By Southern Army

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, August 8 (6:35 p.m.)—Of the troops of Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan only a broken remnant now is left, some few hundred alone surviving after successive defeats in five days of fighting near Chaolichow. The Hunan forces have seized this city and have hemmed in the Tuchun's chief commander, Sun Chuan-fang near Hsienlin.

The five days battle brought heavy casualties and many wounded are being brought to Hankow. The Red Cross has sent several detachments from here today, bound for the scene of fighting after urgent calls for surgical assistance.

Shasi as well as Ichang now is menaced by the Southern forces under General Kung Ken so that the position of Wang's army under Chao Yun-hwa rapidly is becoming untenable and he is making repeated and frantic calls for reinforcements which are not now available. The fall of both Ichang and Shasi before the rapidly advancing Southerners is hourly expected.

General Hsiao Yao-nan commanding the troops of General Wu Pei-fu, has sent a representative to interview Chiang Tso-ping who heads the Hunan forces that are endeavoring to complete the overthrow of Tuchun Wang. The object of their conference has not been learned, but the announcement of a coalition or at least a truce between the Chihli troops of Wu Pei-fu and the invading Hunan army is believed imminent.

Wu Pei-fu's Troops To Be Rushed To Front

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, Aug. 8.—The Peking Government has ordered General Wang to remain in office.

The 25th Division, commanded by General Hsiao Yao-nan, has left Wuchang, presumably for Hunan. The 24th Division, comprising Chihli troops, is being hastened to Hankow.

The Canton-Hankow Railway has been cut at mile 43.

The influx of refugees from Wuchang still continues.

Would Keep Fighting 120 Li From Wuchang

Hankow, August 9.—The Consular Body has addressed a request to the Chinese authorities that no fighting should take place within a distance of 120 li from Wuchang.

The Hupeh troops have so lost their fighting spirit that cases of desertion and flight are very frequent.

Wang Chan-yuan tried to hand over his seals to Hsiao Yao-nan but the latter refused to accept them. So the seals were given to Civil Governor Liu. Wang has entrusted the 2nd divison to Sun Chuan-fang and the 18th division to Lu Chin-shan.

A representative has been sent to interview Tsao Kun asking him for his opinion as to handling the Central China situation. Tsao favors the appointment of General Wu Pei-fu as Commissioner for reorganising Hupeh's affairs and guarantees that Wu is free from pro-Hunan tendencies.

Tsao Kun has sent a telegram to the Government asking for the immediate remittance of $300,000 to Shanghai to pay outstanding salaries due to the officers and men of the Chinese navy as it is not possible to get the Navy to call off its strike otherwise. Some 600,000 rounds of ammunition and 500 shells have been sent by Wang Chan-yuan to the troops under Wang Yu-chin and Chao Yung-hua to help them to resist the advance of the Southern troops from Szechuen.

Wang Chan-yuan has issued a proclamation in the course of which he says:

"Chao Heng-ti, Commander-in-Chief of the Hunan troops has notified me that he wants to attain two objects, my own resignation and the self-government of the Hupeh people. Nothing will give me more pleasure than to resign at these troublous times while the ideal of self-government is one that I can heartily endorse."

One report says that Wang Chan-yuan has given orders for the cessation of fighting at the front and has placed guards at the bridges of the Peking-Hankow Railway in preparation for a retreat.

Wu Pei-fu Controls In Yangtsze; Blocks Chang

Hankow, August 6.—Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan of Hupeh has sent his family and all movable treasures in more than a hundred boxes to his home town in Shantung.

Chang Tso-lin is in serious predicament over the matter of despatching troops to Wuhan to share the spoils and power in the Yangtsze Valley now relinquished by Tuchun Wang. This is indicated by his cancellation of a remittance of $500,000, which was sent to Hankow some days ago through the Chinese-American Bank of Commerce for use of his troops to be sent here. Among other things, Wu Pei-fu's virtual control of the Peking-Hankow line is the principal cause. All available rolling stock on the line is now used for trooping Chihli soldiers from Honan to Hankow, and because of geographical position, Wu Pei-fu's men have the right of the way.

As far as can be seen at present, the Chihli faction is mostly likely to get control of the Yangtsze Valley, or at least the middle section of it. Rumors circulate at the time of writing that Wang may abruptly leave Wuchang. He is thoroughly discouraged by the sweeping defeats his troops have suffered. Kuomintang agents are planning a coup against Wang in Wuchang. Residents of Wuchang and the Chinese town of Hankow are pouring into the foreign concessions of Hankow. Wuchang is being deserted as if it were over the hot crater of a volcano!

Silesian Triangle Worst Problem; Split Say French

effecting a settlement of the question by provisions as equitable as possible, alike for the Poles as for the Germans."

MUST BE EQUITABLE

The Morning Post also insists upon the necessity of an equitable solution.

The Italian press as a whole seems to adopt an attitude favorable to the French point of view. The Gazzetta del Popolo in particular remarks that if France finds herself completely isolated on the Upper Silesian question Italy would be ill-advised not to come to her aid, in order to retain her interest in the Albanian question.

The first sitting of the Supreme Council was held this afternoon at three o'clock in the Salon de L'Horloge at the Quai D'Orsay, where the Peace Conference met, and where the ratifications of the Versailles Treaty were exchanged. M. Briand presided and Mr. Lloyd George was on his right hand.

The French delegation comprised M. Briand (Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs), M. Loucheur (Minister of Liberated Regions) and M. Berthelot (Secretary of the Foreign Office).

It is remarked that British circles appear to hold to the principle that the industrial zone in Upper Silesia should be treated as an indivisible whole, and that it should be allocated to Germany.

TWO DISTRICTS OUT

The basis of their reasoning is the fact that Poland only obtained 280,000 votes in this inqustrial region as against 315,000 for Germany, and there is reason to believe that the districts of Pless and Rybnik have been eliminated from this area—as being of a less industrial character although containing some mines and factories, and populated by some 25,000 workers—in order to arrive at the above figure.

By including these two districts in the industrial zone, the majority in the plebiscite is transferred to Poland, with 381,000 votes against 360,000.

It could be argued with equal force that the whole industrial region should be assigned to Poland. The French representatives, however, do not go so far as that, but advocate the partition of the industrial basin proportionately to the numbers of votes cast for the respective parties, which would give the larger part to the Poles.

That the two views are far from agreeing is evident. It is hoped that the direct negotiations between the French and British Premiers will afford some solution.

WOULD SPLIT TRIANGLE

While the experts generally favored the indivisibility of the industrial triangle of Silesia, M. Laroche, a French expert, pleaded for the division of the triangle and the allotment of the greater part to Poland.

Sir Cecil Hurst, the British expert, declared that 678 communes voted pro-Poland and 844 pro-Germany, and that the total votes were 469,000 pro-Poland and 707,000 pro-Germany.

Great Britain expressed the opinion that, first, and here France agreed, the settlement should be based on communes; secondly, enclaves must be avoided; thirdly, the communes should be economically inseparable and must not be divided. Consequently the industrial triangle should be allotted to Germany.

Great Britain complains that, whereas seven-elevenths of the population voted in favor of Germany, the line proposed by France gave seven-elevenths of the territory to Poland, including Koen'gshutte, without allocating a single mine to Germany.

M. Laroche, criticising the British proposals, declared that they gave nine-elevenths of the Polish voters to Germany and only two-elevenths to Poland. He disputed the British contention regarding an industrial triangle, pointing out that Kattowitz, one of the principal towns, was the capital of the district of Pless, which had been unanimously allotted to Poland.

The Italian expert did not favor either of the solutions. Nevertheless he expressed the opinion that the British line was more in accordance with the results of the plebiscite than the French.

Effect On Entente Of Council Is Sole Topic

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Aug. 8.—The gravity of the discussions of the Supreme Council as affecting the Anglo-French Entente, is the keynote of newspaper comment. All the papers publish editorials on the subject and are unanimous in declaring that Upper Silesia is the dominant question for discussion. They express the opinion that this question must be settled almost exclusively by the British and French delegates, the Petit Journal remarking that it would be imprudent to reckon on the benevolent effect of American or Italian mediation. It declares that the very principle of the Entente Cordiale is at stake.

The Petit Parisien maintains that an agreement on the Upper Silesian question can only be attained if the dogma of the indivisibility of the industrial region, which has impressed the British experts so strongly, is abandoned. Le Journal urges the strategical side of the question, saying that an adequate rampart must be established on Germany's eastern frontier. The Matin declares that to make Upper Silesia German territory would mean a triumph for militarism.

Wealthy Even Starve In Brest Litovsk Area

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 8.—Mr. F. L. Thompson, the representative of the American Relief Administration in the Brest Litovsk-Pinsk aera, has arrived in London. He says that when he left, refugees were pouring into Brest Litovsk at the rate of 2,000 daily. They had nowhere to live except ramshackle dug-outs, in which many crawled only to die. Many were unable to walk, owing to their swollen bodies and legs, due to starvation.

Mr. Thompson in one town found ten of the wealthiest families living on bread made of straw, mud and grass, while thousands of others were living on soup made of grass.

Excess Profits Act Cuts Down Loss Of Manchester Firm

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 8.—Financial writers point out in connection with the losses resulting from the trade slump, recently mentioned by cable, that Messrs. Rylands, of Manchester, whose losses for the past six months were stated to have been £1,263,000, are able to claim a refund of over £1,200,000 on account of excess profits duty. Their actual loss, therefore, was only £63,000.

Loire Region Is In Grip Of Drought

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 8.—The region of the Loire is very seriously affected by the prevailing drought. The pastures are burnt up, and the farmers are obliged to feed their cattle on their winter reserves of hay.

Most of the springs and wells have dried up, and many villages are without water. Fires are breaking out everywhere, these being mainly due to sparks from locomotives.

Provincial Chiefs Declare Against Stock Exchanges

Tuchun Chi Shi-yuan and Civil Governor Wang Hu of Kiangsu have sent a lengthy despatch to the Cabinet and to the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce asking for drastic measures to be taken through the Diplomatic Corps for the closing of the stock exchanges that have sprung up like mushrooms in the foreign settlements here.

The provincial authorities state that they have received petitions, some made orally and some in writing, that these exchanges are indulging in various types of speculation that will sooner or later disorganise trade in Shanghai. They compare the exchanges to rubber share companies which some years ago wrought havoc in commercial Shanghai.

According to this despatch the mushroom growth of exchanges has been due to the fabulous prices at which shares in the exchanges pass hands, a $10 share having been sold for from $70 to $100. The local Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, says the despatch, has been instructed already to negotiate with the Consular Body for putting an end to stock exchange abuses.

11 Factories Now Involved And End Of Strike Is Far

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Aug. 5.—In spite of the offers of mediation by the Mayor of Kobe and other persons, it is felt that no ordinary method of compromise can settle the labor dispute as the differences between the directors' ideas and the workers' claims are so great.

Eleven factories are now concerned in the labor troubles, which are daily growing more serious.

Two Questions Deal With Aid To British In India And Shantung Position

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 8.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Harmsworth (Under-Secretary to the Foreign Office), replying to Sir J. D. Rees, asserted that the Anglo-Japanese Treaty did not provide for Japanese assistance to Great Britain in the event of internal disturbances in India.

Sir J. D. Rees said: "The contrary fact has so recently been stated that it is almost believed, with very serious consequences."

Mr. Harmsworth emphasised that there was no foundation for such an assertion.

At question-time in the House of Commons today, Mr. Forrest asked whether it had been suggested that Japan's disabilities as to the right of emigration into British Columbia gave her certain preferential rights in China, especially in specific provinces.

Mr. Chamberlain replied that the Government was unaware of any such suggestion.

strictly construed." (3) In specifying "a consul" the section cannot, except in clear terms, be extended to any other. The limitation, imposed as long ago as 1860, was, doubtless, an appropriate one as regards a consul who was then usually an officer without legal training. But the organic act creating this court requires (4) that its Judge shall be a "lawyer of good standing and experience" and the reason for such limitation upon him never arose.

It is true that the same act provides (5) "that the jurisdiction of this court shall be exercised in conformity with said treaties and the law of the United States now in force in reference to the American consular courts in China." But, as we have seen, the limitation invoked by respondent is one not upon the "consular courts" but upon the "consul," and there is a distinction in the different sections of the laws then "in force in reference to American Consular Courts in China" between "consular courts" and "consuls" even in the latters' judicial capacity. Some sections (6) relate to "consular courts"; others to "consuls" only (7) and consular courts were not always presided over by a consul. The minister e.g. was given "original jurisdiction" (i.e. the jurisdiction to hold the consular court whenever a consular officer was "interested either as party or witness," (8) And no such limitation in contempt cases was placed upon the Minister nor indeed upon the Court. The Minister, as an appellate tribunal, (9) necessarily possessed the power, inherent in all courts (10) to punish for contempt. Indeed it is expressly provided (11) that "'In all cases,' except as herein otherwise provided, the punishment of crime provided for by this title shall be by fine or imprisonment, or both, 'at the discretion of the officer' who decides the case."

As it is "otherwise provided" only as regards "a consul" it is clear that there was no limitation upon his exercise of jurisdiction to punish for contempt, and it passed, thus unlimited, to this court by the express terms of its organic act. (12)

It would be absurd to apply to the Judge of this court all the limitations previously imposed upon "consuls" when acting judicially—e.g. the limitation that

"they shall entertain jurisdiction in matters of contract, at the port where, or nearest to which, the contract was made, or at the port at which, or nearest to which, it was to be executed, and in all other matters, at the port where, or nearest to which, the cause of controversy arose, or at the port where, or nearest to which, the damage complained of was sustained, provided such port be one of the ports at which the United States are represented by consuls." (13)

Yet if respondent's contention were correct we should be obliged to apply this and other limitations which would seriously hamper the work of this court. The language invoked by respondent from the organic acts (14) regarding "laws of the United States now in force" etc. is obviously taken from the Revised Statutes (15) themselves and must be construed in the light of the purpose there apparent which was to provide a general system of jurisprudence and not to impose narrow limits upon jurisdiction.

It cannot be supposed that the framers of the organic act who desired to create a United States Court of dignity and jurisdiction more extensive than that of a District Court at home seriously intended to limit the power of its Judge, to protect the Court, to that exercised by an administrative officer without legal training and having little occasion to exercise judicial functions. But if such had been the intent it would have been corrected by the later legislation of Congress. More than five years after the passage of he Court Act, Congress enacted the Federal Judicial Code, (16) which contains the following:

"Sec. 267. Suits in equity shall not be sustained in any court of the United States, in any case where a plain, adequate, and complete remedy may be had at law.

Sec. 268. The said courts shall have power to impose and administer all necessary oaths, and to punish, by fine or imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, contempts of their authority."

Here then is a clear and unequivocal declaration that "any court of the United States" may punish contempts "at the discretion of the court." Surely if any tribunal is a "court of the United States" it is the United States Court for China.

It is true that sec. 268 above quoted is a reenactment (17) but it thereby became new legislation, a later expression of legislative intent and with a significant change in phraseology. For while the antecedent of "said courts" in the old section was the phrase "courts of the United States" (18) the antecedent in he new section is, as we have seen, "any court of the United States". This court is entitled o exercise the power conferred by sec. 268 unless it can be judicially held that it is not "any court of the Uited States". And if it is not, then what is it?

We are familiar with Judge Thayer's decision (19) that the consular court Regulations govern the procedure of this Court, except so far as modified and supplemented by its Judge, even as against inconsistent provisions of the Revised Statutes then in force. That decision was based mainly upon the provision in the organic act creating this court that "the procedure of the said court shall be in accordance, so far as practicable, with the existing procedure prescribed for consular courts in China in accordance with the Revised Satutes of the United States." (20).

It will be seen that this provision relates to procedure alone. But the degree of punishment which may be imposed therefor is a matter not of procedure but of jurisdiction. Now Judge Thayer was dealing with a question not of jurisdiction but of procedure i.e. the limitation of actions which, he cites authority to show, relate to the "remedy" (i.e. procedure) and not to the right. Judge Thayer never decided, and the question was not presented to him, that the jurisdiction of this court must always remain like that of the consuls under the Revised Statutes. He never held, and never intended to hold, that any limitations upon the exercise of that jurisdiction could not be removed by a general act relating to "any court of the United States."

Such an interpretation would deprive this court of the benefit of all subsequent legislation relating in general terms to the Federal judiciary. And that must be the main source of legislative improvement for this court. Congress with its burdensome and growing calendars cannot be expected to pass laws relating exclusively to a single and distant court. Its only hope is to share in the benefits of all general legislation fairly applicable to it.

"The claim that this court is limited in contempt cases to the authority conferred over sixty years ago, because its jurisdiction is to be exercised "in conformity with the laws of the United States" and that Congress cannot by a general act remove that limitation, seems more absurd the longer it is considered. In all probability the phrase last quoted means no more than that in the succeeding section, i.e. procedure. In other words "in conformity with" means "according to the procedure of."

But whatever its intent the Congress which passed the organic act could not bind a succeeding one—could not prevent the Congress which enacted the Judicial Code from extending many of its provisions to this court. And that is exactly what it did as regards sec. 268. That section applies to this court if it is available to "any court of the United States."

The inconsistency of respondent's position on this point is apparent from his own argument on his motion for a so-called change of venue. Nothing of the kind was permitted in the old consular courts.

"No power to change the venue of a cause is given to United States Consular Courts in Japan either by the Statute or the Consular Court Regulations. No cause or proceeding can be remanded by a Consul to another jurisdiction, neither can the Consul General authorise or compel another Consular Officer to leave his jurisdiction and come to Yokohama to sit judicially." (21)

And the statutes relating to consular courts in China were the same. Yet respondent invokes provisions of the Judicial Code which apply only to "district courts" (of which this is not one) while attempting to exclude sec. 268 which applies, as we have seen, to "any court of the United States."

The power to punish for contempt is conferred upon courts in order that they may protect themselves against indignities and obstructions. That this court could not so protect itself by a fine of $50 or imprisonment for twenty-four hours is manifest from this very case. The respondent evidently assumed, without investigation, that such was the limit of the court's power and then deliberately proceeded to incur the risk of its exercise, reasoning thus: "To gratify my desire to insult the court in its presence, I am willing to pay $50, or undergo twenty four hours confinement." But had he known that the court could imprison him "at its discretion" it is altogether unlikely that he would have done what he did.

It is clear, therefore, that the section invoked by respondent would not enable this court to protect itself in such cases, or, in other words, is deficient. And on that ground alone it is inapplicable. For the very section of the organic act invoked by respondent provides:

"In all such cases when such laws are deficient in the provisions necessary to give jurisdiction or to furnish suitable remedies, 'the common law and the law as established by the decisions of the courts of the United States' shall be applied by said court in its decisions and shall govern the same subject to the terms of any treaties between the United States and China." (22)

And under the common law which is thus rendered available, the power to punish for contempt is, as we have seen, discretionary.

The falsity of defendant's reckless statements, mentioned in the original order, is clearly shown by the counter affidavits which have been considered in ruling on this motion. Nor is it suggested in respondent's brief that the sentence is excessive on its merits but merely that it exceeds the consular limitation. Moreover, the despondent still expresses no regret for his action, manifests no penitence and suggests no intention or desire to purge himself of the contempt. Under these circumstances we have no alternative but to overrule his motion to reduce the sentence.

On August 8, 1921, respondent, for the first time, filed an application for bail pending a writ of error. One who has been adjudged guilty of contempt is not entitled to bail as of right (23). But in this case, such an application would have been considered at any time since respondent's commitment. For while, we have no doubt of the regularity of these proceedings, we are unwilling to place the slightest obstacle in the way of their review by the appellate court and unless bail is granted a writ of error might be nugatory; for the sentence would probably be served before there could be a hearing in the Court of Appeals.

The motion to reduce the sentence is, accordingly, overruled but the application for bail pending a writ of error, is granted and it is hereby ordered that, upon the respondent's executing a proper bond in the sum of $2,000, United States Currency, and perfecting said writ of error by filing his assignment of errors and a bill of exceptions containing all the affidavits, service of the balance of his sentence be deferred until the disposition, in any manner, of said proceeding in the Court of Appeals.

By the Court,
CHARLES S. LOBINGIER,
Judge.

China Wants Delegation Of High Standing Men

Peking, Aug. 6.—Telegrams from various bodies throughout China continue to urge the Government to appoint an able delegation to the Pacific Conference, and to take measures to offset propaganda unfavorable to this country.

HATHER

Don't Negotiate With Japan, Urges Message

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, August 6.—A Tokio dispatch reaching the Peking Government today and purporting to have been sent or inspired by the Chinese Minister to Japan, asked the Government to decline to enter direct negotiations on the Shantung case.

The dispatch declared that the Japanese now have a movement on foot to force direct negotiation if possible. This plan is to offer China every possible inducement to enter such a conversation but that if she refuses Japan will point out to the World that China is divided and will claim that peace between North and South is a remote possibility.

If China does not yield and enter the direct negotiations, Japan will also try to prevail upon the Washington Conference to recognise the South as a separate nation.

While no mention of such a plan has reached the Japanese papers, nearly all of the larger publications there say that every effort is being made to get the Shantung case settled before the Washington conference. The papers generally argue that the case should be settled. The Peking Government is asked in the dispatch to pay no heed to the Japanese editorial comment.

China is said to be entirely ready for such a move on the part of Japan as it has been made before. If such an attempt is made and there is any interference in the unification matter, Japan may not find the South so ready to fall in line as she thinks.

While the delegation has not been selected by the Chinese Governmnt, it is known that the personnel is being considered seriously and few doubt that a man satisfactory to the South will be named as one of the representatives.

In this matter there is no disposition on the part of Peking to play politics, according to authentic reports but a sincere desire to have the delegation represent all China. Efforts to play politics with the Conference are entirely on the outside and inspired by parties out of power, it is said.

The Chinese Government is also said to be determined not to enter direct negotiations on Shantung.

Exchange Promoters Face Boycott But Go On With Their Plan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, August 9.—Those opposing certain merchants monopolising the share-holding interests of the proposed Canton Stock Exchange held a mass-meeting on August 7. The meeting protested against the monopoly, suggesting a boycott.

It was also alleged that the merchants were accepting Japanese capital.

The promoters are progressing with the organisation, paying no heed to the protest.

GOOD OLD GEN'L. CHANG NEAR END OF JEHOL JOB

Resorts To Opium Taxation When Peking Cuts Him Off Payroll

(China Press Correspondence)

Jehol, August 5.—Beautiful for location in its mountain-encircled valley, this most interesting city has enjoyed its usual leisurely existence during the past decade while China has been torn with political strife. But now even this remote frontier town is being drawn into the maelstrom of China's Feudal Age.

The old Tartar General Chiang Kuei T'i, intimate of Yuan Shih-k'ai and loyal friend of the old Dynasty, has been able to make his province one of the few spots in China where peace and prosperity are not strangers. The depletion of the national treasury, shutting off funds for paying his 30,000 troops, is causing his downfall. For the past nine months most of his soldiers have not been paid.

As a measure of desperation opium growing on a large scale has been permitted the past year, a fine of $6 per mou for all land sown to poppies being paid into the local treasury. Last year a good profit was made by the farmers in spite of the tax and the difficulty of smuggling the opium inside the Wall.

But this season so much land has been planted to poppies that the price has fallen to 8 mao per ounce, and the farmers are facing loss; also many local people are now able to indulge in opium smoking. It is feared there will be acute shortage of grain this Fall due to the large poppy acreage.

NO CHANCE IN FIGHT

Two days ago word came that Chang Tso-lin's troops, with the General he is sending to supplant General Chiang, has arrived at Hata, four days to the north, the old General's soldiers falling back to Jehol. Just what will develop no one ventures to say. Although unpaid, the local soldiers are loyal to their old General, and it is thought will make a good fight if enough of them can be brought together to make a stand. They know of course that such a stand is hopeless as sooner or later the superior forces of Chang Tso-lin will drive them out.

The Tartar General is reported as willing to get out if he only had money enough to pay up his soldiers first. If they fight and are driven out, or simply disband and spread over the country without doubt many or most of them will turn bandit and loot the neighborhood for their back pay—not a pleasant prospect. But this seems the inevitable outcome.

The two families of foreigners resident in Jehol (English missionaries) are not uneasy as to themselves, as they have long-standing relations of a most friendly character with the "Old General." But it is increasingly difficult for travellers to gain access to Jehol, and quite impossible to proceed in any direction beyond that point. With the approaching disbandment of the local troops traveling will become decidedly dangerous for either foreigners or wealthy Chinese, throughout the region.

The ancient and elaborate palace grounds and the queer Mongolian Lama temples make this a city well worth visiting in ordinarily peaceful times. How much will be left of these historic and religious shrines after the impending battle is a question.

German Progress At Tsingtao Slow

(China Press Correspondence)

Tsingtao, August 5.—Summer visitors come and go. The month of July was one of many fogs and plenty of rain. We hear of two couples who are honeymooning here; the weather, of course, does not affect them much. In the farming districts the crops are growing luxuriantly, and the farmers are happy in anticipation of good harvests.

Owing to the weather, and to the presence of many melons, cucumbers, raw fruits, etc., in various stages of ripeness, there is much sickness in the city among the Chinese.

In some of the shops are now to be found German hardware, paints, and other products, showing that the Germans have not abandoned the idea of returning to Tsingtao. A German who desires to obtain permission to open a certain line of business says that the processes of securing permission are very slow.

The people at Kirin and Heilungkiang, the Chinese press reports, are much enraged over the high-handed action of the Russian man-of-war in Heilungkiang River in obstructing the advance of the Chinese man-of-war Kiang Heng and firing on the steamer Haugchow. By way of retaliation they advocate rupture of commercial relations with the Chita Government and the opening of hostilities. The Tuchuns of the two provinces have been instructed to pacify the people as it is possible to effect a satisfactory settlement.

Jobless Men Riot And Cause Great Lumber-Yard Fire

(Reuter's Service)

London, Aug. 8.—Messrs. J. Gliksten and Son's timber-yard at Stratford, in the East End of London, with an area of 23 acres—the largest in the United Kingdom—and containing stocks valued at £1,000,000, was practically destroyed by fire today, after a disturbance created by some thousands of men who had applied for work and were unable to obtain it. The yard at mid-day was one huge flame two-hundred feet high in places.

Flying Circus Man Arrives Here Today: Planes Held In Kobe

Mr. W. Burt Barr, head of Barr's Flying Circus, which is billed to show in Shanghai in the near future, will arrive here today by the Monteagle following a series of difficulties encountered with the promoters in Japan. According to wireless messages received yesterday the organisation's planes are being held in Kobe, but negotiations are under way for their release and it is hoped to open the exhibition here on schedule time.

The trouble which the circus has experienced in Japan, according to advices received here, arose over disagreement with the Japanese, Kushi Bicki, who signed the contract with Mr. Barr in San Francisco and who got into arrears on payments. Mr. Barr later succeeded in having the contract broken, but further difficulties arose when the shows, already contracted for, were turned over to various local promoters, leading to further disagreement. In Kumamoto the fliers and their assistants are reported to have been mobbed by men in the employ of the promoters.

TSINGTAO CUT OFF FROM TSINANFU BY RISING FLOOD

Over 100 Li Of Rail Line Swept Away; Wires Down

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Tsingtao, August 9.—Rail and telegraphic communications between Tsingtao and Tsinanfu have been completely cut off by floods which are sweeping the intervening country. More than 100 li of the railway line between Tsingchowfu and Chowtsun has been carried away.

The floods in Shantung mentioned in the above despatch are evidently occasioned by the overflow of the Yellow River, the course of which lies only about thirty miles from Chowtsun.

The delay in the train service from the North, occasioned by floods affecting the Tientsin-Pukow line, is steadily being reduced and schedule time is practically in effect again as far as passenger traffic is concerned.

Last night's train from Nanking was only a little behind the regular time, the Nanking train being held to make the connection with the train from Tientsin. The night previous the Nanking train was held about three hours for passengers from Pukow.

The break in the line is at Yangchowfu, a short distance north of Pukow.

NINTH CAVALRY SERIES POSTPONED BY WASHOUT COMMENCES TODAY 5 P. M.

Dennison In Hospital; Schedule Rearranged To Leave An Off Day After Each Two Games; Shanghai Players Confident Of Winning

A washout on the S. and N. Railway line caused the postponement yesterday of the Ninth Cavalry-Shanghai baseball series of six games. The Cavalry team got around the washed out tracks arriving in Shanghai yesterday morning, but minus all but hand baggage. Other baggage was held back for the train which arrived here last night.

The opening game of the series will be played this afternoon commencing at 5 p.m. The day's postponement of the opening of the series will not affect the advertised program: Six games will be played before the Manila team leaves port, and maybe even more.

The Cavalrymen had a strenuous trip from Tientsin southward. The district between Pukow and Tientsin has been flooding with rains for the past two weeks, and it was feared days ago that the line might be interrupted. The break came just ahead of the ball-team's train.

Passengers were transferred around the washout into day coaches, no sleepers being available. The players rode into Shanghai in chair cars, and when they arrived were in no condition to play a strong team like Shanghai even had their baggage come with them.

Lieut. Waddell, the officer in charge of the Cavalry team yesterday promised that the six-game series would be played notwithstanding the delay in starting the series. The Manila contingent he said will be here for approximately two weeks, awaiting transportation to the Philippines. There may even be more than six games played.

STRANGERS COMPOSE TEAM

It was also learned yesterday that the Ninth Cavalry team which starts here today is composed entirely of players new and unknown in Shanghai. The Jordan in their lineup is not the star catcher who played with the team here three years ago. The Old Jordan is now out of the service. He is catching for the Kansas City Blues, a negro nine which ranks as one of the strongest semi-professional teams in the States.

The Evans now with the Ninth is not the "Slow-time" Evans who pitched and worked around the infield for the old team. "Slow-time" also is out of the service He is in civilian life in Honolulu Roy Parker, the third old timer who was expected to play here for the Cavalry in this series remained in Tientsin.

Shanghai today though still confident of taking the long end of the series is in a considerably weaker position than it was yesterday. Dennison, one of the locals pitching mainstays, who was expected to bear at least half the brunt of the boxwork went to the hospital yesterday with a touch of summer sickness, and probably will not work in the series except possibly in one or two of the later games.

Because of Dennison's illness and the reduction of Shanghai's pitching strength the series will be played with an off day intervening after each two games so as to give the twirlers an opportunity to rest up after working. Games will be played today and tomorrow at 5 o'clock. Friday will be an off day. Saturday and Sunday games will be called at 3:30 p.m. with Monday an off day. Tuesday and Wednesday, the last two games of the series, will commence at 5 p.m.

SAYS "BUGS" Baer:

GALLERY SUPPORT IS VOCAL TONIC

They Won't Play With You If You Try To Play For Them

BY "BUGS" BAER

Playing to the gallery. That's a term of contempt in sport. Meaning that some bird has made a difficult play out of an apparently easy chance. The gallery is quick to spot a gent who is playing to 'em and the first to contribute generously to the community chorus of razzes. They don't like the outfielder who loafs on a fly and grabs it with one finger when he should be able to catch it in his hip pocket. Any sport is the same. The tennis player with the superfluous flourishes is quickly card indexed by the mob. As a rule, the gallery athlete is lacking in some ability and makes the most of his few opportunities to horn in.

We used to know a football player who couldn't play so good. At least, he was never called on to pay an excess tax on his gridiron record. But, he wore a white bandage around his skull that made his head stick out like a sore thumb. Figuring on his thinking radius it should have stuck out like a sore thumb.

WAVED HIS LUNCH HOOKS

Before each play, when the rest of the linesmen were crouched for the jump, he would be up swinging his arms and glaring like a hobo ready to jump on a New England boiled dinner. He was the most prominent bird on the field as he stood there waving his lunch hooks. When the play was over, he was still standing there flailing his arms. Never got into play that he could claim exemption on.

He was a gallery gladiator and the gallery knew it. His coaches knew; but it was a small college team and they had no subs. This was in the days before the co-eds got so rough. There is very little gallery play in golf, except on the tees. Lots of sartorial golfers like a few extra swings there and then look around to see if they were wasted. Especially in front of a double sextette of flappers. They figure that manly beauty like theirs shouldn't be wasted on the Eighteenth Amendment air. The flapper also likes to pose for animal crackers on the tee. Open to criticism of course, but there are a lot of us who buy magazines just to look at the Harrison Fisher on the cover.

ADOPTED BY GALLERY

You can't adopt the gallery, but it's all hunky when the gallery adopts you. They do that often. And you can't explain it. If you flirt with the boys in the attic ringside seats, they're off you. But when any athlete goes about his business in a workmanlike way, they are with him. They were for Brennan in the Brennan-Dempsey fight. Possibly on the well known underdog theory.

They surrounded a chap named Magnus Larsen at the State amateurs at the Garden. Larsen didn't know any more about boxpunching than a red ant does about table manners at a picnic. He stood up and soaked in an awful beating from Frank Adams while the gallery rooted for him at a very neutral distance. Magnus looked up at 'em once in a while as if he would appreciate some more concrete evidence of their allied support. He got nothing but a vocal vote of confidence from the gallery board of directors. Which made him feel recompensed for the socking.

SPAULDING BROS. DEFEND LIVELY NEW BASEBALL

Maintain No Change Has Been Made In Manufacture; Best Ball Ever

In view of the agitation being waged by baseball men against the so-called lively ball an official statement concerning the material used in the baseball is interesting. President John A. Heydler of the National League has received the statement from Julian Curtis, President of A. G. Spaulding and Brothers, which furnishes all the baseball used in National League games. The letter from Mr. Curtiss to Mr. Heydler is as follows:

Dear Mr. Heydler: Many letters have come to my desk and I have also read in the papers various articles in regard to the free hitting that is going on this year in the major leagues, and giving as a reason therefore that the ball we are furnishing is much livelier than in the past.

Permit me to state most emphatically that there has been no change made in the manufacture of this ball. The rubber and cork center we make ourselves in our own rubber mill, and it has remained unchanged ever since this great improvement was introduced into base ball manufacture. The leather is as usual the most carefully selected horsehide that is tanned in this country. That also comes from the same source and is tanned in exactly the same way as it has been tanned for the last twenty-five years. As far as the yarn is concerned, every yard of that this year is spun in our own yarn mill, and it is possible that the quality is a trifle better than last year. We increased our facilities in order to manufacture every pound of this yarn ourselves so that we could depend absolutely on the quality. Last year we were compelled to buy some from outside sources.

No pains have been spared to make this ball the perfection of baseball manufacture, and never in the history of our business have we put out an article that has given such universal satisfaction. No complaint has yet been registered, but compliments have been many. I never have been so proud of our product as I am this year. There is nothing of the freak about it. It is the best base ball that we have ever made and I believe that ever has been made.

Very truly yours,
JULIAN W. CURTIS.

Fight Film Shows Contest Was Clean, Fast And Close

Neither Jack Dempsey nor Georges Carpentier has anything to be ashamed of as they appear in the motion pictures which are to be shown at the St. George's Open Air Cinema commencing tonight.

A private exhibition of the film was given Sunday in the godown of the Pathe Orient to the press and special guests. The film as fight pictures go, especially short fight pictures, is a work almost of perfection. The mechanics of the film are cleverly handled. The story in the picture covers the whole event, from early training period and preliminaries, to the knockout and its aftermath.

Each of the fighters appears to good advantage. The pictures bring out numerous interesting points, yet they will not stop discussion. For instance, the blow with which Dempsey administered the coup de grace, yclept the K. O. in the fourth travels so swiftly the eye cannot follow it or say for sure whether it went to the heart or the jaw.

The facial expression of the two as they sat in their corners waiting for the bell are clearly shown. Dempsey's restlessness takes the form of moving his lips and wetting them with his tongue. Carpentier has a trick of gently bringing his lower teeth up to his upper ones, a habit possibly which exists with him outside the ring as well.

The fight was as clean as the most exacting could ask—the pictures show that. They bring out, too, that Dempsey is a cool, clear headed, valiant fighter, taking no unsportsmanlike advantage whatever of his superior weight, no sprawling on his game and intrepid adversary. He is a faster and more accurate hitter than Carpentier, excels him in speed, precision and judgment of distance.

The scrap was marked by the absence of jabbing. That is a feature of the pictures. They break clean every time. Dempsey recovers with amazing quickness from that blow with the right in the second, and in less time than it takes to tell it he's back again on his man and outfights him the rest of the round.

Dempsey's act in picking up Carpentier after the count was an honest and kindly impulse—spontaneous and unstudied. Even if you saw the fight, respect for both men must increase when you see the pictures.

Tilden Favors Japanese For Challenge Round

BY WILLIAM T. TILDEN 2D.,

French tennis of which American are to see so much during the summer, is typically French. It is excitable, interesting, ever changing and overflowing with personality. There is always much of interest to write about it. When the American team was in Paris for the world's hard court championship all of us enjoyed every moment on the court. There were scintillating moments even among the dubs. You enjoyed the valuable "Mon Dieus" and "C'est impossible" that filled the air.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of French play is that their best men are fine performers on dirt courts. That is because they play only on dirt there. They have not yet gone in for turf courts. And for this reason the general style of their game is not unlike that developed on asphalt in California or through the Middle West.

ANDRE GOBERT

France has two noted players, international veterans, with whom it was a pleasure to renew an acquaintance begun at Wimbledon last year—Andre Gobert and William Laurentz. I am a great admirer of Andre Gobert both as a player and man. He is a charming personality both on and off the court. His smooth, polished manner in repose is in marked contrast to the flurry and excitability that is his when he is engaged in a particularly hard match. Yet each is characteristic of Gobert.

In so far as racquet technique is concerned his game is almost beyond criticism. He plays all of his strokes with an ease and a finish that quite surpasses our own Dick, he is either very, very good or very much the other way.

Gobert is essentially a net

WASEDA TEAM LOST 23 GAMES ON AM'N TOUR

Claims Poor Showing Against American Colleges Due To Weak Pitching

With a record of 15 games won and 23 lost to American college baseball teams the Waseda University team have returned to Japan. Despite the failure of the team to break even in its contests with the American collegians, the trip was pronounced successful by players and manager.

The Waseda aggregation went to America in April at the invitation of the University of Chicago and played nearly 40 games with the best of the American college teams, from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic. The team lost more games than it won because of the weakness of its pitching staff, according to Manager Tobita. Two pitchers who had been depended on were lost to the team and Tanikuchi, the mainstay of the Waseda nine in the mound, had to pitch in 31 of the 38 games played.

The teams of the University of Illinois and the University of Michigan were the best the Japanese collegians went up against, Manager Tobita said. He said that he believed the Waseda team compared very favorably with the run of American college nines, but these two aggregations he admitted were superior to anything in Japan.

"We scarcely had time to take off our uniforms during the trip," Mr. Tobita said yesterday. "We were rushed from diamond to entertainment and to our trains, and by the time we left the United States we were completely worn out."

AUSTRALIANS KNOCK UP 312 RUNS FOR SEVEN WICKETS IN 2ND DAY WITH WARWICKSHIRE

County Eleven Dismissed in First Innings For 133; Armstrong Takes Five Wickets For 33; Bardsley Hits 12 Fours

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 8.—When play was resumed at Birmingham today in the match between the Australians and Warwickshire the weather was unsettled, and the wicket was still soft after the recent rains. Some 9,000 spectators were present. The county eleven, who had scored 96 for six wickets on Saturday in their first innings, were dismissed for 133. Armstrong captured five of the wickets for 33.

The Australians batted for the remainder of the day, hitting up 312 for the loss of seven wickets. Bardsley (75), Macartney (72) and Armstrong (50 not out) were the chief contributors. Bardsley played a vigorous innings. He was only at the wicket slightly over an hour, and hit 12 fours, while Macartney was batting an hour and three-quarters.

In a match which was completed at Weston-super-Mare today Hampshire beat Somerset by eight wickets.

Slivers Of The Diamond

More famed as a comedian than a ball player is Nick Altrock, coach of the Washington Senators. For Nick, a natural born comedian, has kept hundreds of thousands of baseball fans amused with his antics during his many years on the diamond. He is a real pantomime artist, and is as much of a drawing card as the rest of the Washington club combined. His one-man argument is a classic enjoyed by fans in all cities of the American League circuit and his tight rope performance along the foul line is also the work of an artist. Altrock, in his day, was a great pitcher. Though just a comedian to the fans he is a professor of baseball, knowing every angle of the game from a to z. One of his most important duties is keeping the Washington players in good humor when things are not breaking just right for the team.

McKEOWN FREED ON ORDER GIVEN BY LLOYD GEORGE

Courier's Arrival Frees Man Overlooked By Underling In General Amnesty

(Reuter's Service)

London, Aug. 8.—Mr. McKeown, the member of Dail Eireann whom the Government at first refused to liberate, on account of his having been convicted of murder, was released this evening. This continued imprisonment threatened to wreck the Irish truce.

Mr. de Valera made a statement prior to the release that he did not think the refusal to release Mr. McKeown was the considered judgment of the English Cabinet, but merely the judgment of some subordinate.

It is understood that Mr. McKeown's case was not specially considered by the Cabinet, and that the release followed upon the visit of the Sinn Fein courier to the Premier in Paris.

Excuse Us Says Sinn Fein To Wounded Man

London, August 8.—There was a remarkable sequel to the shooting of a constable in Belfast on Saturday. Mr. O'Duffy, the Sinn Fein truce officer for Ulster, called at the hospital and apologised. He said two civilian assailants on patrol duty were carrying arms in defiance of the prohibition. Their excuse was that they were passing a hostile district.

Paris, August 8.—A courier from the Sinn Fein Cabinet today delivered a message to Mr. Lloyd George, who has not yet replied.

N.Y. Consul To Sift All Circumstances Of Student Chen's Fate

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Aug. 6.—Official reports from Havana say that Mr. Wu Kelcho, Consul-General and Charge d'Affaires in Cuba, accompanied Mr. Chen Kuang-ying and another consular student to the steamer on which they were to travel to Key West. The boat sailed in the morning, and after tiffin the other student reported that he could not find Mr. Chen. A search was made and no trace of him could be found. The student stated that Chen had been lying down at lunch-time and said that he wanted nothing to eat.

One inference is that Chen jumped overboard, but no explanation is offered as to how a man could jump overboard in the middle of the day without being seen. This objection applies with greater force to a suggestion that the missing man was thrown into the sea.

Mr. Alfred Sze, Minister at Washington, reports that he is sending Mr. Shih Yu-ming, Consul at New York, to Havana to conduct an inquiry into the case.

48 PERISH WHEN SHIP'S BOTTOM IS TORN BY REEF

Four Lifeboats Launched In Fog But One Capsizes; Captain Is Victim

(Reuter's Service)

Eureka, Cal., August 8.—Thirty-six of the passengers and 12 of the crew of the Alaska perished when the vessel struck a reef which tore out her bottom. She sank within half an-hour. Thirty of the survivors sustained injuries. A fog was responsible for the disaster.

Four lifeboats were launched, but one of them capsized, and its occupants were thrown into the water. Many persons, wearing lifebelts, jumped into the sea from the steamer, and some of these were rescued some hours later, clinging to pieces of wreckage. The captain was last seen standing at the vessel's stern before the Alaska took the final plunge.

Sees Japanese As Cup Challengers

player. Standing about six feet three inches in his stocking feet he is, therefore, the possessor of a reach that actually covers the net like a blanket. To lob over Gobert's head is well nigh impossible. Another fine point about his play is his ground game. It is really beautiful to behold. Although his footwork is quite good it is rather ponderous. When I speak of his service I do not exaggerate when I state that it is easily one of the greatest deliveries in the world. The pace is terrific.

You may well ask then, in view of the French and English tournaments in which he has played in this season, why he is not one of the leading players in the world? And the answer is quite simple. He fails because he has been unable to control his temperament. That is inclined to run away with him when under the strain of a hard match and rob him of the confidence a player must have. However, Gobert is potentially great at all times and without a doubt one of the most dangerous opponents of tennis today.

WILLIAM LAURENTZ

William Laurentz, the other veteran of the French Davis cup team, is a different proposition entirely. Laurentz is essentially a match player, one of the type who produces his best when under the biggest strain. And he also differs from Gobert in so far as technique is concerned, as he is by no means the perfect stroke master his fellow teammate happens to be. But in contradiction to Gobert, Laurentz's temperament is his great asset.

Physically Laurentz is again the opposite to Gobert, as he is rather small. But he has remarkable speed and is withal a brilliant and dangerous opponent at any time, though inclined to be erratic. He hits very hard and forces the game at all times. He is the Harold Throckmorton of France. That will place him exactly among American tennis followers.

Around these two men France built her Davis cup team which will play in various important events this summer.

As I see this event shaping up there is little doubt in my mind Japan will prove to be the team to challenge America. I favor Japan with Kumagae and Shimidzu.

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

Health, Beauty And The Home

The Secret of Youth

By Rene Bache.

WHEN a woman is fast asleep her heart beats more slowly than when she is awake, and she takes fewer breaths per minute, because her oxygen requirement is for the time being reduced to a minimum.

Every minute she is taking into her lungs fifteen quarts of air. If she were walking outdoors she would require forty quarts. Playing a lively game of tennis, she would consume fifty-five or possibly sixty quarts a minute.

Taking an average for sleeping, moderate exercise and occasional exertion, a woman takes air into her lungs at the rate of eight gallons a minute, 495 gallons an hour, or 11,520 gallons in a day of twenty-four hours. The quantity of air she thus consumes in twenty-four hours would fill a room eighteen feet long, eighteen feet wide and eighteen feet high.

With every breath exhaled a woman's lungs get rid of a quantity of carbonic acid gas, which is a waste product. The fresh air that she takes into her lungs supplies oxygen to her blood, by which it is carried to all parts of her body.

Her heart is continually pumping blood through her lungs in order that it may take up the oxygen, which is so vital a necessity that a stoppage of her breathing for a very few minutes would kill her.

The fluid which courses through her veins is of a pale straw color. But in it are suspended great numbers of tiny bright-red disk-shaped bodies resembling poker chips in miniature. These are the so-called "red corpuscles," which give to the blood its crimson hue, and there are from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 of them in every drop. If all of them that float in the blood stream of my lady fair were spread out in a single layer they would cover 3,000 square yards.

The color of the skin of my lady fair is yellow, but the red blood shows through and gives it a pinkish tinge. She owes the redness of her lips to the crimson-hued corpuscles; and, if the skin of her cheeks be thin, so that the blood in the capillary vessels can show through, she will have that rosy look which is so much admired.

When a person dies the blood, being no longer supplied with oxygen, immediately loses its red color and consequently the skin assumes a pallid yellowish hue. Anything that troubles the heart—a strong emotion may do it—causes the skin to lose its pinkness; or, as we say, the person "turns pale."

My lady fair has gone to sleep again. Approach her quietly as she lies in restful unconsciousness. Bend over her without disturbing her and you will notice that her body is giving off a surprising amount of heat.

That is not at all strange, for her body is really a stove. It is a far better heater than any stove you can buy, producing much more heat for the quantity of fuel consumed.

The fuel, of course, is the food she eats, which is chemically burned in her body. She derives from it energy as well as warmth.

My lady fair has a blanket over her in bed. It is to regulate the amount of heat her body gives off. If the heat escapes faster than her body produces it she shivers and, maybe without waking, pulls up another blanket. If her body produces heat faster than it passes off she feels too warm and throws a blanket off. Comfort demands the preservation of an exact balance.

The normal temperature of her body is 98 3-5 degrees. If it radiates less heat than it produces she has fever. If it radiates more heat than it produces her extremities become cold and she may have a chill. A temperature slightly below the normal is a symptom much more serious than fever from the physician's point of view.

To show how remarkably efficient is the human stove it may be stated that the amount of heat given off by the body of my lady fair in twenty-four hours would raise 174 gallons of water ten degrees Fahrenheit.

One-fourth of the fuel she consumes is required merely for running the machinery of her body. Her heart pump—the most efficient type of pump ever constructed—must be kept going night and day, forcing 140 gallons of blood per hour through her veins and arteries. Energy is utilized in operating her digestive system and other vital apparatus. She is a power plant.

Like a steam plant she requires water as well as fuel. In twenty-four days she consumes her own weight in food and water, half of the latter being contained in the food. The total dry substance she burns daily in her digestive furnace is one per cent of the weight of her body. Thus, if she weighs 125 pounds, she will consume one and a quarter pounds of dry matter each twenty-four hours.

The body of my lady fair is a wonderful machine. It will outlast five of the most improved locomotives. It will continue in running order three times as long as a first-class printing press. The life of the newest type of high-power automobile does not cover more than one-twelfth as many years.

Hard work has the same effect upon a woman as upon any other kind of machine. Overwork, or exposure to the elements, will rapidly use up a motor car, and with a woman it is exactly the same way. Severe labor and constant exposure cause her to age very fast. Witness the case of the typical farmer's wife.

Largely depending upon the conditions of their every-day existence, women run through their lives with different velocities. If forty years of age be taken as representing a certain normal physiological standard, one may say that most women reach that period of their lives either earlier or later than forty.

If a woman enjoys the advantages of easy living, comfortable means and freedom from sordid anxieties, such as lack of money inevitably brings, she is likely to preserve her youth and good looks much longer than the average woman who is less fortunately circumstanced. Not only does she look younger than her age, whatever it may be, but she is younger.

Your Hands and Nails

By Lina Cavalieri,
The Most Famous Living Beauty.

THE hands and voice are the two instruments which distinguish mankind from the brute creation. For they are the servants which perform the commands of the will, man's highest possession. Everybody is familiar with the wonders of voice culture, but how few of us realize what latent beauty and usefulness can be brought out by developing each little set of finger muscles and teaching it to co-operate with its neighbors.

To develop the fingers it is necessary to teach them to take advantage of this support and not to pass their duties up along the arm to the muscle intended for heavier work. And as you know the woman who has acquired symmetry of movement possesses that great beauty, gracefulness.

When you massage yourself or do your own manicuring you are not only saving money but developing these much neglected parts of the body as well. Our grandmothers were not wonderful musicians but since in their day all young persons were obliged to play the piano they acquired a nimbleness of fingers and strength of wrist unknown to their grandchildren.

As you perform your various little household duties make it a point to lift as many small things as possible with the strength of the fingers braced against the wrist bracelet. Do not grab light utensils with the full force of the arm, but hold every thing firmly in your grasp. The old reproach of "butter fingers" applies to many a woman to-day who when she does not grip things powerfully simply allows them to slip through her fingers, because she has not made her little finger muscles the servants of her will.

Of course, in really heavy housework you should use thick loose gloves. The men of the family can always be relied upon to contribute enough slightly worn hand coverings to supply the family household.

But many small articles and china cannot safely be handled with gloves. Hence when about to dust this type of article it is well to follow the practice of many of the artists who handle oil paints and crayons. Dig the finger nails deep into a cake of soap so that the space beneath the nail is so soap clogged that no dust can enter, and when your work is over hot water will entirely remove this obstruction.

When you have finished your housework wash your hands with plenty of hot water and soap and whiten with lemon juice. I consider a lump of pumice and a half of a lemon as necessary toilet articles as soap and nail brush.

Then take some good cold cream or olive oil and carefully rub it into the hands. Do not just smear it in, but carefully work it in so that each hand is massaged by its mate and the wrists are twisted and turned into all possible positions. Then draw on a pair of old chamois or fabric gloves and sit down and read the latest news.

Before saying anything about the care of the nails I want to ask you to take a good critical look at your own hand.

If the finger tips are square you can modify them very slightly by constant and laborious squeezing, yet they will never really taper. But this type has much in its favor, so why not adjust your manicuring to your own type of finger, and shape the nails in a bit sharper curve than the ends of the fingers? Really a very sharply pointed nail upon a square finger point resembles nothing so much as the claws of a cat protruding from its round paws. And especially when employing a "specialist" it is necessary to know your own individual needs and have her conform to them.

Now that all women are using the hands more they are learning, as the pianist and typist have long known, that the nails should merely be of sufficient length to protect the sensitive finger-tips.

The skin at the base of the nail should not be cut but pressed down. If, whenever you dry your hands you will gently press down with a soft towel the cuticle at the base of the nail it will never become troublesome. And it is far better to keep your hands in good condition than to spend occasionally much time on getting them back into shape.

A bit of old suede glove in the drawer of your toilet table should be always used to supplement the rubbing down of the towel. In this way your nails will have a natural lustre which is far more elegant than the high polish achieved by much buffering and the use of polishes and even varnish.

Secrets of Beauty

HOW can I remove dark circles under the eyes?—ANXIOUS.

Dark circles under the eyes are sometimes due to improper diet and lack of sufficient exercise. But they are chiefly caused, I think, by lack of sleep. See if getting more sleep every night in a well ventilated room will not make those unpleasant circles disappear.

I AM dreadfully afraid of using any cold cream that might stimulate the growth of hair, as my skin has a tendency that way already. Can you recommend one that will not do this?—D. S. B.

Any woman who fears to apply to her face anything that might grow hair may safely use the following cream:

Almond oil	2 ounces
Rose water	4 ounces
Spermaceti	½ ounce
White wax	¼ ounce
Tincture of benzoin	2½ drams
Elder flower water	10 drops

I AM seventeen, of medium height and well built except for my legs, which are much too thin. I am a good walker and exercise them often, but I am quite discouraged because they are so lean and make my feet seem too large.—EDITH.

Massage your legs nightly with cocoa-butter or lanolin. If preferred, you can massage them with this emollient preparation, which will encourage the laying on of extra flesh:

Lanolin	30 grams
Tannin	½ gram
Oil of Sweet Almonds	20 grams

AFTER massaging my face at night with cold cream it often appears irritated and angry-looking. Can you tell me what to do about this?—LUCY M.

It is possible that you massage the face too heavily; or it may be that the cream you are using does not agree with your skin. Some women cannot use any cream containing cocoa-butter. However, the exceeding sensitiveness of your skin will be soothed by massaging it gently with some of this preparation, which is especially fine for a delicate skin:

Tincture of benzoin	1 ounce
Tincture of vanilla	4 drams
Sweet almond oil	3 ounces
Bitter almond oil	5 drams
Spermaceti	5 drams
White wax	1 ounce
Witch hazel	1 ounce
Rose water	3 ounces

DOES the daily use of powder tend to spoil the complexion?—A. R. E.

A good pure powder will do no harm provided you are always careful to remove all traces of it at night with cold cream. This should be applied every night before retiring. In the morning the skin should be thoroughly cleansed with warm water and a good soap and then bathed in rose water.

CAN you help me remove a superfluous growth of hair without injury to my skin, which is very delicate?—B. F. S.

There is nothing except electrolysis which will kill the roots of the hair and prevent the new growth. There are any number of harmless depilatories of standard make that would remove your disfigurement temporarily, but it is likely that the renewed growth will be thicker and more conspicuous than before.

CAN you tell me how to remedy an itching scalp? I have no dandruff and my hair is in good condition otherwise.—S. W.

It is well for you to know that an itching scalp always precedes the falling out of the hair. To prevent this, shampoo your hair at least once every two weeks with the following:

White of two eggs
Juice of two lemons
Water	1 quart.

Apply by rubbing the whites of the eggs thoroughly into the scalp with the tips of the fingers. After this application moisten the scalp thoroughly with lemon juice diluted in one quart of cool water.

THERE is an unsightly layer of fat on the back of my neck. It always spoils my appearance in evening dress. Can you help me?—E. J.

Apply nightly a reducing, or astringent, lotion to this superfluous bunch of flesh, rubbing it in with long, sweeping downward strokes which have the effect of melting down the too ponderous fat into the larger masses of flesh on the shoulders. Here is a lotion that has been used for this purpose with marked success:

Tincture of iodine	30 minims.
Iodide of potassium	60 grains.
Hyposulphite of soda	20 grains.
Aniseed water	170 minims.

Bringing Out the Other's Best Side

By Jane Baird.

DID you ever think what kind of a woman your wife would have been if you had not asked her to marry you? Or did you ever think what kind of a man your husband would have been if you had not answered "Yes?"

Have you ever crushed any ambition, chased away any talents or driven inspiration from your household? Have you done anything to increase ambition, develop talent and encourage inspiration?

Whether you are aware of it or not, you have either brought out the best side of your life partner or buried all that was good in him or her.

Perhaps your wife played the piano quite well when she married you. Does she play as well now? How many women have musical talent which is crushed by an unappreciative husband?

Even though a man does not know one note from another, it is his duty to encourage his wife to "keep up" her playing.

Is your husband as keen on business matters as he was when you married him? Does he talk as much about his business and about the men with whom he deals every day? Or did you drive business from his head?

If your husband is a temperamental genius, have you always encouraged him? Have you said just the things he needed to help along his invention, his painting or his book?

If some other woman had been his wife do you think she could have helped him more? Instead of talking about his work have you talked about making bread and the laundress?

Too many husbands and wives have an idea that with marriage they must lay aside their personalities. Marriage does not mean putting aside the ego. The happiest married couples are those who follow out their own beat, develop their own particular talent and are encouraged in doing so by the other.

And then outside of ambition along business lines and interest in the arts one must consider character. Have you brought out the kindest, most lovable side of your husband or wife?

A gray haired spinster had lived ever since childhood with two sister spinsters who thought of nothing but the boiling tea kettle and the mixing of layer cakes. She had had only a grammar school education, but by wide reading she had done much for herself. But her sisters were too busy boiling water and mixing cakes to discuss books or magazines with her.

The one bright spot in her dreary existence was an occasional call from the minister's wife, who was a college woman and one who had read and travelled widely and well. "Somehow," sighed the spinster, "I love to talk to you because you bring out my best side!"

There is so much in bringing out the best side of any one. A good many of us possess two sides. There are more Dr. Jekylls and Mr. Hydes in the world than we realize.

How often your opinion of a man and some one's else don't tally. You will often say: "I can't see how Smith tolerates Jones; he's the meanest man in the world!" And yet Smith has found the better side of Jones.

Have you found the better side of your husband or wife? Have you done anything to bring that better side to the front?

If not, start doing so this very minute, and see how much you can add to the happiness and material success of your daily life by this simple expedient, which is unhappily overlooked in so many homes.

Tested Rice Recipes

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Rice au Gratin.

COOK 1 cup unglazed rice until tender. Add 2 cups scalded milk, 2 finely chopped pimentoes, 1 cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake until browned in a rather quick oven.

Rice Waffles.

ADD ¾ teaspoon salt and 1½ cups milk to 2 cups hot rice. Add 2 well-beaten egg yolks and 2 cups flour sifted with 4 teaspoons baking powder. Add ¼ cup melted butter and beat well. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Cook on hot, well oiled waffle irons.

Rice and Meat Loaf.

ADD 2 cups any chopped cooked meat to ½ cup of good thick gravy. Thicken with 3 tablespoons flour blended with 3 tablespoons drippings. Add salt, pepper and any other seasoning to taste. Grease a loaf cake pan, line it with cold boiled rice, taking care to pack the rice, fill the pan with meat and cover with rice. Bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve with brown or tomato sauce.

Sweet Rice Croquettes.

BLANCH 1 cup of rice carefully and finish cooking in 3 cups scalded milk. When tender and dry add 3 egg yolks, ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup whipped cream and ¼ cup shredded candied orange peel or other candied fruit. Form into small, round croquettes, roll in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with cold fruit sauce.

Rice Croquettes.

COOK ½ cup of rice until about half done. Cook 2 cups tomatoes with 1 slice of onion, a sprig of parsley, 1 clove, a slice of red pepper and a pinch of salt for 15 minutes and then strain. Add to the drained rice 1 cup of stock and cook over hot water until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Add 1 egg, ½ cup grated American cheese and 1 tablespoon butter. Cool, shape into croquettes and roll in crumbs, egg and crumbs again and fry in deep fat. Drain on unglazed paper.

Rice Griddle Cakes.

REHEAT 2 cups cooked rice. Add ¾ teaspoon salt and 2 cups milk to the hot rice. Cool and add 3 egg yolks, beaten, and 2 cups flour sifted with 4 teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Cook on hot greased griddle.

American Chop Suey.

CARAMELIZE 1 tablespoon sugar, add 1½ cups dried cooked pork or veal, 6 finely chopped onions, 2 cups chopped celery, 4 finely chopped peppers, 1 tablespoon cooking oil, 2 cups meat broth and salt to taste. Cook gently until the vegetables are tender. Add 1 cup cooked rice and ½ cup soy sauce.

Rice with Bacon and Tomatoes.

MELT 2 tablespoons bacon fat or fry 3 or 4 slices bacon in a saucepan. Add 1 slice of onion and 1 cup unglazed rice and cook slowly until fat is absorbed. Add 1½ cups strained tomato pulp, 2 teaspoons salt, a dash of pepper and 2 cups water or stock. Cook slowly until the rice is tender. If desired add ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Rice with Meat Balls.

COOK 1 cup soft bread crumbs with ½ cup gravy until thick. Add 3 cups finely chopped cooked meat, a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper, and 1 slightly beaten egg. A few drops of onion juice may be added if desired. Set aside to chill. Then shape into small balls, roll in flour or fine bread crumbs and brown in bacon or beef drippings. Serve on a bed of boiled rice and garnish with crisp parsley. Tomato sauce or meat gravy may be served with the rice.

Rice Pudding.

BLANCH ¼ cup rice carefully. Then cook with 3 cups milk and a pinch of salt until tender. Dilute 3 or 4 tablespoons cornstarch with ¾ cup milk and add to the rice and milk. Stir with a fork to prevent mashing the rice. Cook over hot water until the starch thickens. Then add 5 or 6 egg yolks beaten with ¾ cup sugar and stir for a few minutes until the egg is set. Add 2 or 3 drops almond extract and a few drops vanilla. Turn into a buttered baking dish, cover with meringue, place in a pan of hot water and bake until the meringue is delicately browned.

BARTHOLOME SAD; HIS VICTORY 'PARIS' LEAVES TUILERIES

Sculptor's Masterpiece Is Still Without Site In French Capital

MANY SPOTS SUGGESTED

Work Is Certain To Be Pointed Out To Tourists As Great Memorial

Paris, June 11.—The vicissitudes of Albert Bartholome's statue representing "Paris, 1914-1918," are not yet ended. Despite the master sculptor's insistence that there is only one suitable site in all Paris for what he considers his greatest work, the experts of the Ministry of Fine Arts, after authorising work on the foundation for the statue have decided that the towering granite base would interfere with the Tuileries perspective if it were placed there and have ordered the removal of the statue on rollers to another site.

M. Bartholome is reported to be heart-broken over this, as the acceptance of his statue by the Government seemed to indicate that he had received the honor he most sought—namely, having visitors to the French capital's favorite play-ground continually inspired by his work.

A dozen other sites for the statue have been proposed, but the master is ignoring all these suggestions, and his friends are predicting that he will die of grief if the Tuileries site is definitely abandoned. Some critics suggest the Gare de l'Est to be in keeping with the sculptor's idea, as from the east came the menace that aroused all that was powerful in Parisian character.

Others suggest the Bois de Boulogne, or even the Place de la Republique, but with such centers already crowded with more or less reputable statues, the civil authorities are withholding their consent to placing it in either of these places. It is thought possible that permission may eventually be granted to install the statue on the little island midway of the Pont Neuf, where the ancient morgue, reminiscent of thousands of other disappointments, will soon be torn down and a more modern building, with life savers attached to it, will be constructed further down the Seine.

One thing, however, is certain. M. Bartholome's work will be pointed out to tourists for centuries as one of the greatest memorials ever produced and one that is too grandiose to fit into a perspective which starts at the Louvre gardens and ends at the Arc de Triomphe.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce of Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, August 3:

FINANCE AND MONEY MARKET

Quotations in London for bar Silver on the 2nd instant were 38⅞ forward, being ⅛d higher for ready and unchanged forward as compared with the previous week. In the interim quotations have been up to 39½ and 38⅝ ready and forward respectively. India has again been a buyer, while the Continent and China were sellers. The Official quotation for Sterling T.T. remained unchanged until the 2nd instant when the rate advanced 1⅛d to 3/10½d. The market has been very firm and previous to the rise there were sellers for cash up to 1⅜d over rates but not better than ¾d over could be obtained later. The New York-London cross rate was 3.56½ showing a decline of ⅜ during the week. Chinese market rates: Shanghai fuels 96.8. Dollars local currency 70.25. Native Interest: 14% per annum.

EXPORTS

The market for all produce remains very quite with only small enquiry from Home. The uncertain Political situation just now is affecting trade, and this fact coupled with the firm tone of exchange renders business extremely difficult.

IMPORTS

Owing to the still uncertain Political situation, the market remains about the same as last reported.

The Pacific Conference

THE endless drama of mankind, having for plot the ambitions of nations, and for players the statesmen in power, has shifted its central scene to the rim of the earth where rolls the long Pacific swell.

Will the play be different in the new theater? Has the day of secret diplomacy, of breach of faith, of the triumph of might over right, of scraps of paper, really gone with the yesterdays of civilisation and decay?

Serious students are groping in the maze of tomorrow, wondering if the Pacific Conference will lay down new and abiding rules for conduct in a play called the Parliament of Man. Or are the old entrances and exits approved by Macchiavelli and enforced by Metternich to continue as guidance for the nations on the stage?

Westward the course of empire has taken its way. From the cradle of imperialism in the Euphrates the center of international gravity slipped to the Mediterranean. There for centuries Phoenician galleys battled with Grecian for mastery of the sea, and Roman triremes fought with Carthaginian for possession of the corn routes and eastern trade. In medieval times the golden hordes of Tartary pushed the eastern wing of the Nordic race until the western branch was driven into the breakers along the seaboard of North Sea, the Bay of Biscay and the Atlantic coast of Spain. The result of the racial pressure was a quest for new continents.

On the day when Columbus returned to Spain the center of importance shifted again, following the law of trade; the Atlantic became man's chief theater of aspirations, and remained the battle zone of empire for four centuries. The Spanish lead in the race was challenged by Hawkins and Drake, brave captains of romantic days, who singed King Philip's beard at Cadiz and harried the Carribean in search of treasure galleons from the Spanish Main. France, Portugal and Holland, all had their day in the Atlantic theater, but bowed in turn to the Anglo-Saxon supremacy on the sea.

Again the scene shifts to unexploited areas of the earth, which this time are the shores washed by the Pacific. Tea clippers and whaling ships have given way to leviathans of steam and super-dreadnoughts of steel. The race for trade draws the focus of attention to the untapped trade marts of China, the mineral and agricultural wealth of Siberia and Alaska. Thousands of coral islands dot the surface of the vast ocean, nearly every one a possible naval base, or a coaling station for the merchant marines.

Many grave questions affecting the positions of the nations in the race are to be decided at the Pacific Conference. If ever a situation demanded all cards face up on the table it is the one before the delegates to that conference. Frankness is the best dessert to any feast of reason, and yet insinuations, squirming innuendoes, and bald suggestions are being made that certain matters of vital import to peace on the Pacific be barred from discussion at the conference.

It is to be hoped that national selfishness will not be allowed to interfere with a pacific adjustment, that the aggrandisement schemes of any one power will not be considered as a legitimate barrier to the accomplishment of an expressed international will.

As an indicator of future weather on the Pacific the Conference stands without a parallel in history. As the wind blows at the conference so will the sails be set for years to come. One hundred years ago students of history foretold the absurd futility of the Congress of Vienna in its attempt to restore order in Europe. Prophecies, equally true, were made regarding the Treaty of Versailles two years ago.

The Pacific Conference will close an epoch, or begin a new one. It will be the last conference of its kind, or the first of a new order. The world is waiting attentively, and critically, for it has been disillusioned many times in the past.

Mr. Fleming's Appeal

ELSEWHERE in our columns appears a ruling of the United States Court for China upon a motion made by Mr. W. S. Fleming for reduction of sentence and for bail, from which it will be seen that upon perfecting an appeal, the serving of the balance of his sentence by Mr. Fleming will be deferred until the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco shall have time to review the case.

This new development in a case which has attracted widespread public attention will no doubt act as a deterrent upon irresponsible and misinformed criticism. As stated in the decision, an appeal has been open to Mr. Fleming since the day of his commitment. An appeal of this sort naturally does not originate with the Court, and it is to be noted that as soon as it was made by Mr. Fleming the court took action in the direction of setting him free until such time as a higher court could review the matter.

The matter will now be reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals whose opinion will no doubt be awaited with great interest by the public no less than by those more closely concerned.

Certainly Masculine

"She has a masculine mouth, don't you think?"

"Very! I fancy she couldn't hold more than a dozen hairpins in it to save her life."

Too Frank

"I understand your husband is something of an after-dinner speaker."

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins. "What Charley is liable to say after dinner is the reason we can't keep a cook."

Source Of Well-Known Words

Philology is one of the most interesting subdivisions of history. The history of words—their origin and journey down the ages until we make their acquaintance—is fascinating. In such a commonplace subject as the names of the different fabrics from which clothing is made, for instance, there is a whole volume of history, with now and then a bit of biography thrown in for good measure.

Take that good old-fashioned stuff, calico, of which the aprons and dresses in our mothers' and grandmothers' days were made, before it was widened and starched and dubbed percale. Centuries ago there was on the western side of the Indian peninsula a great city whose principal industry was the making of cotton goods printed in colors. Calicut was the mame of the city, which had a splendid harbor, handsome palaces and magnificent pagodas. Its citizens were strong and soldierly enough to repel twice invaders who tried to capture the city and learn the valuable secret of its printed cottons, for the fabrics of Calicut were highly prised by other countries. The dropping in of the final consonant left the word "calicu," which in course of time became the "calico" of today.

Muslin is another word of Eastern origin. This comes from Mosul, an old city of Mesopotamia, famous long ago for its delicate cottons, so thin that a whole breadth might be drawn through a lady's finger ring. According to the famous Venetian traveler, Marco Polo, the caravans of Mosul brought the wonderful muslins to Bagdad and Aleppo, whence the Europe of the Middle Ages was supplied. The flowing veils of the ladies of the period were of fine muslin, brought over sea and desert from Mosul.

A second group of favorite cotton fabrics comes from France. We call one "cambric," and again the name all but repeats that of the place where it was born—Cambrai. When Julius Caesar was carrying on his campaign in Gaul, it was one of the chief cities of that warlike tribe, the Nervii. Later Charlemagne fortified it strongly. It has had many kinds of prominence down the centuries right up to the World War, in which it was very much in evidence, but for nothing is it better known than for the perfection of its cotton fabrics.

In Brittany is the little city of Guingamp, whose cotton weavers hit upon the idea of dyeing the thread before it was woven, and then placing it in the loom so that it would form a pattern of stripes or checks. To these artists of long ago we are indebted for the gay, dainty ginghams which are so popular now, and again the name of their native city has been attached to their handiwork.

Tulle, the delicate, open-mesh lace which is such a favorite for scarfs and light draperies, takes its name without changing a letter from a city in the south of France.

As India and France have named our cottons for us, so England has named the more substantial woolens. About the year 1330 the woolen trade settled in and around Worsted, a town fifteen miles from Norwich, and it was at this place that the manufacture of the twisted, double-threaded woolen, afterward called worsted, was first carried on, if not invented.

Linsey-woolsey, for a long time a popular fabric of wool and cotton, was first made at Linsey and called "linsey-wool." Whether the final syllable was added purposely or "just happened" is not known.

Kerseymere, or cassimere, was made in the English village of Kersey. Tweed was the name given to the fabric worn by the fishermen on the River Tweed. Melton and cheviot also take their names from the districts where they were first made.

In Southwest Palestine, on the border of the Egyptian desert and about three miles back from the sea, is an ancient city of the Philistines called Gaza. Its cotton was the finest and filmiest, hence our word "gauze."

A SUMMER EPISODE

"Today" remarked the charming maid
"As it is ninety in the shade,
I'll make a jelly, 'twill be nice,
One quart of it will quite suffice
I'll get some fruit to put inside."
And then with culinary pride,
She blithely to the ice-chest went
To weigh up each ingredient.

But when the dish was served, alas!
A limp, unappetising mass,
She cried, "How foolish I have been,
I quite forgot the gelatine!"

A BISHOP BUNKERED

It was on Sunday morning last that a story about Andrew Kirkaldy found a place in my column. A correspondent, who signs himself "A Daily Reader" sends in anoher good yarn about the famous golfer. Here it is:

An amusing story about the Bishop of London is related by Andrew Kirkaldy, professional to the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, St. Andrews.

The Bishop put his ball into Hell Bunker, and got out from a difficult position so well that he called over to Andrew: "That was a good shot, was it not?"

"A good shot," was Andrew's reply. "You got out of Hell very well. When ye dee mind and tak' yer niblick wi' ye."

CENSORED

A school-girl was required to write 200 words about a motor-car. She submitted the following: "My uncle bought a motor-car. He was riding in the country when it busted going up hill. The other 180 words are what my uncle said when he was walking back to town, but I know you wouldn't want me to repeat them."

THE WHY AND WHEREFOR

"Why do you get out of the way for every road hog that comes along?" said the wife rather crossly. "The right of way is ours, isn't it?" "Oh, undoubtedly!" answered he calmly. "As for getting out of the way, the reason is plainly suggested in this epitaph:

Here lies the body of William Jay,
Who died maintaining the right of way;
He was right, dead right, as he sped along,
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong.

HIS WORD HIS BOND

The statement made by Charles Schwab, the American steel millionaire, that Germany by her industry is winning the peace, recalls the story of how the Germans tried to bribe him.

Mr. Schwab went to England, saw Lord Kitchener, and promised that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, of which he was the head, would supply Britain with anything she wanted.

When he returned to America, Germany offered him twenty-five million pounds to cancel the British contracts. Britain countered with an offer of thirty-six millions. Mr. Schwab merely laughed, and said the British and the German Empires together had not enough money to make him break faith with Lord Kitchener.

BACK TO WORK

Goin' to work seems kind o' rough;
'Pears like you ain't had rest enough.
Get to wishin', you surely do
That life was loafin' the whole year through;
An' you feel that the factory whistle shrill
Is a kind of a ghost that won't keep still,
But scares you before you've had sleep enough,
I tell you, goin' to work is rough!

* * *

But after the mills shut down a while
An' the neighbors kind o' forget to smile,
An' the town gets quiet an' grievin' like,
An' folks talk nothin' exceptin' strike,
The greatest comfort a fellow knows
Comes when that good old whistle blows
An' he takes his tools an' he gets in line—
I tell you, goin' to work is fine!

HE'S ABOUT RIGHT

An American millionaire was walking along the seashore in the Philippine Islands, when he came upon a native stretched out in the sun.

The millionaire reproved him for his laziness, but the native didn't worry much.

"You have given yourself all sorts of trouble to pile up a fortune," he said. "What use is it to you?"

The millionaire said it gave him a chance for leisure, for having a good time and for seeing the beautiful places on the earth.

"That's just what I am doing," replied the native.

"One leads where many follow."

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Avoid disappointment by refusing substitutes which do not possess its advantages.

Don't 'Dagger-Point' Nails—Abomination

BY DR. WOODS HUTCHINSON

A good deal of character is to be read in finger-nails. The French have a shrewd expression: A man is honest, is honorable "jusqu'au bout des ongles,"—to the very tips of his finger-nails. Not in any mysterious or subliminal sense that the soul or true inward nature shines or leaks out at the tips of the fingers, but merely in the prosaic sense that the finger-nails express with considerable clearness and accuracy the neatness, the care for details, the self-respect and the vanity of their owner.

Here, as everywhere else, it is intelligence and moderation that rank highest on the score card. Too meticulous a toilet, too glossy a finish; are as bad as frank and sturdy neglect, with rough straight edges and faint bands of mourning right across.

These glittering pink-tinted, dagger-pointed little atrocities which are the vogue at present, are an abomination and suggest the talons of some blood-thirsty little bird of prey, still tinged from their last plunge into a victim. They are caricatures of what a fingernail ought to look like and give the whole hand a feline—not to say catty—expression.

ARGUED A MIS-SPENT YOUTH

Of course the darling ambition of the manicure is to transform the fingernail from a mere nail into a work of art—and she sometimes succeeds. But the hand which is victim of her triumph is apt to remind one of the story of Herbert Spencer as a billiard player.

The famous philosopher, who played a fair game, was one day challenged by a young doctor. The young man politely permitted the philosopher three plays, and then, picking up his cue, ran gracefully and smoothly out, without a single balk.

He turned, expecting admiring compliments, but Spencer merely said: "Young man, I have no objection whatever to reasonable proficiency in games of skill, but such abnormal expertness as you have just displayed argues a misspent youth."

PURPOSES OF FINGER NAIL

Even a finger nail has some definite use and purpose in the world and a clearly marked tendency to grow of its own accord so as to fulfill that purpose if it is just kept clean, reasonably protected and not irrationally interfered with. In other words "There's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will."

The sensible course is to find out what Nature is trying to do with and for the fingernail and then assist her as intelligently and modestly as possible.

The fingernail is nothing but a patch of skin on the upper surface of the finger tip hardened—turned into horn, in fact—for the purpose of covering and protecting the delicate, sensitive "pulp" of the finger below it. Its business being to protect that pulp, its shape should conform to the shape of the pulp, which is one of the most valuable tissues in the body.

If the pulp, or soft tip, of your finger is oval, the shape of your nail should be oval; if it is round, it should be rounded, and if it be square, as it often is in the fingers of the craftsman, the constructor, the nail should be square, with just the corners bevelled off perhaps.

THE IDEAL FINGER TIP

The fashionable, pointed, tapering finger tip is the rarest of all shapes in Nature, and the least useful and desirable when it does happen. Our grovelling admiration for it is solely due, not to the fact that it is beautiful, which it is not, but because it was the shape assumed by fingers kept in absolute idleness and uselessness, and hence to be envied as a badge of superior rank and worthlessness.

The ideal finger tip, both from an artistic and a physiologic point of view, is neither pointed nor tapering but of about the shape of a split olive. This for the reason that all over the surface of its delicate cushion are scattered numerous sense bulbs or specially developed endings of the nerves of touch. These, when gently pressed upon an object, telegraph a picture of that object to the brain.

THE BROADER THE BETTER

Within reasonable limits, the broader and more bulging the surface the larger the number of these nerve electrodes that can be brought in contact with an object touched, the better, as the clearer and more vivid picture of it that can be telegraphed to the brain.

This is probably the reason why so many men or women who, as we say, are clever with their fingers, or in more expressive phrase, "Have eyes at the ends of their fingers," show full, rather broad, finger tips with the sensitive surface running as wide as possible down to the end, which gives them a somewhat square tipped appearance.

There are many exceptions to the rule, but the balance of probability is strongly in favor of the superiority of the finger tip which approaches squareness in shape.
